An artist withdrawing into the tenuous relationship between the lyrical phrase and its musical counterpart, establishing a quasi balance enunciated though the mingling of words meticulously strewn atop musical arrangements. Inspiring as it exhumes. Drawing from both written and visual influences, his inventiveness and subject matter are carefully woven yet splinter into 21st century verisimilitudes. The discontented nature of his artistry allows for an intimate experience yet leaves questionable the very finite possibility of all experience. Confronted with a disquieting self-familiarity, his songs portray modern dilemmas with hints of foreboding and finality; yet, a reassurance of life as being not such a disengaged and distinct experience.
