Psychedelic Ambient Dub. 13 MP3 Songs ELECTRONIC: Ambient, WORLD: Reggae Details: Dragonfly, based out of Seattle Washington, is made up of the two individuals Chris Anderson and Rob Stewart. Starting out in 1987 with a couple of Casio SK-1 samplers and various other noise makers, we have been experimenting with electronic-based music ever since. In 1997 Dragonfly Timestream was released on Sweet Mother Records. You can still find this cd/vinyl as well as other singles and remixes we have worked on if you look carefully enough. 20XX Gauss - Dubwise represents our return from an extended hiatus, which served to refocus our direction and point us back to what is important. This music is intended to fulfill a basic need to express the inexpressible. It is out of this desire that we strive to create a musical catalysis which helps focus the mind and elevate the senses. We do this for the love of creation. It is our way of connecting to a more primal necessity, which guides each song down a path to its natural conclusion. We create each cd individually, with the tools we have available to us. We will continue this process until the last revelation has come to pass. 20XX Gauss - Dubwise was inspired by the ancient Assyrian/Babylonian poem, "Enuma elish". It tells the story of how the forces of disorder (represented by the primeval water-gods Aps and Tiamat) were overthrown by Ea and Marduk, creator of Earth and humanity. 20XX Gauss - Dubwise was recorded as an homage to the pioneering Jamaican record producers and sound engineers who created dub in the 1970's.
