From Vietnamese music to Uzbekistan, Arabian music; from a folk song to a contemporary classic, to the theme from the Godfather, All gather on the one string zither, Dan Bau, the national Vietnamese instrument. 10 MP3 Songs FOLK: Modern Folk, WORLD: Asian Details: The sound of Dan Bau The haunting melodies! After concerts, we often asked and commended Is it really one string?, How it works?, Could I try it?, Wow! It was the incredible sounds!, From far away, I couldnt see the string, so it looked like you were touching the air to make music. Beautiful, beautiful melodies!!! What is it? It called Dan Bau, the Vietnamese national one string zither. It is constructed of a long narrow sound box with a tall curved stem made from water buffalo horn inserted at one end. The single string runs between the sound box and a small wooden gourd attached to the stem. The stem is bent to change the pitch of the string. The string is plucked at nodal points producing the dan baus characteristic high clear sound. The CD is combination of solo and duet Dan Bau with ten difference orchestras and ensemble that including: Traditional Orchestra of Tashkent Conservatory Traditional Orchestra of Tajikistan Traditional Orchestra of Uzbekistan Traditional Orchestra of the Vietnam Conservatory of Music Lotus Ensemble Rose Ensemble Traditional Orchestra of the Vietnam National Music Theatre Symphony Orchestra of Vietnam Gamelan Madu Sari National Symphony Orchestra of Latvia Musicians: Chi Khac Ho is the premiere Vietnamese virtuoso on the Dan Bau. He was master instructor in the department of traditional music at the Vietnam Conservatory of Music and has taught Vietnamese music at the University of British Columbia. Chi has received many important awards for performance and composition as well as for the improvement of the Dan Bau. Bic Ngoc Hoang was the first woman to receive first prize for Dan Bau in the Competition of Professional Instrumentalists in Vietnam, and she won the golden award at the World Youth Festival in Korea. Bic was instructor in the Hanoi College of Arts and has taught Dan Bau in Canada at University of British Columbia.
