The Grand Concourse, Decatur Avenue off of Gun Hill Road and University Avenue were his stomping grounds growing up as a kid. Sean was raised by his beautiful, hardworking and very supportive mother Letitia Hilliard. He has one sibling which is his adorable yet talented sister Ashley Harris a/k/a DJ Ash Boogie. Sean experienced deep pain at the tender age of six years old when his father and mother divorced. Although, Sean was a very good student in school, growing up without his father and living in a hectic environment caused him to carry on a harsh attitude. As a result of this observation, it was at this point in his life that his mother taught him how to be responsible for his actions, and that he could achieve anything if he only worked hard at it. Sean comes from a family who loves music immensely, so he is no stranger to rap, but he never considered rapping professionally. While attending college at the age of 18, Sean's uncle, who is a self-contained artist, told him to write something so he can see what kind of writing skills Sean had. Well, Sean did just that and came out blazing with what would be his first single "Can't Stop That." Sean's family was overwhelmed and excited by this new-found talent and urged Sean to pursue a career in music. Shortly thereafter, Sean's street team packaged his single and took it to the streets where Sean received unsurpassed positive feedback. Much to Sean's surprise, in a competitive and sometimes cut-throat industry, a lot of his competitors humbly agreed that he had all the ingredients to be the next best thing to hit the music industry. As a result of such strong and positive feedback, Sean started to realize a dream he never even considered before of becoming a recording artist. Sean will not be just another rapper. Sean Da Don has true writing skills. He can write a verse at the drop of a dime and his delivery is hypnotic coupled with fast and slow lyrical output that will captivate your mind. He has the ability to write over any beat, from a slow, melodic rhythm to a fast, pulsating heart-throbbing beat. He takes creative control seriously and knows how to deliver. There is no need to concentrate on coaching this young man, he is focused and determined and his work ethic exceeds all expectations. So, proceed with caution because we have a new kid on the block who's about to take residence for a very, very long time.
