Senior Golf 101 How long has it been since you played golf? It was your favorite pastime, but how long has it been? Work and raising a family took up most of your time back then. You didn't play nearly as much as you wanted to. Maybe you should get your golf buddies together and go play a round. At one time you all got together every two weeks to play. When did it stop? Okay, so maybe you are a little rusty. Your body has even developed aches and pains in places you never had them before, but you are still healthy. You still have clubs around somewhere. You will have to dig them out and dust them off. It has been awhile since they have seen the light of day. They will still work. Surely they haven't changed golf clubs that much. Now you have thought about it. Why not get together with your friends and play a round of golf. Surely you don't think you are too old. Did you know some golfers play their best games after they have raised their kids and retired from their careers? You know you need something to do with your time. Oh you do some puttering around the house, but that is not the same as having something you can look forward to a couple of times a week. Did you know senior golfers play more rounds of golf than the younger men who are still raising their families? You are beyond that point. You have more time than they do now because your kids are already grown and have left the nest, and may be raising kids of their own. So what is holding you back? Are you afraid you are too rusty to play a round anymore? You know your body doesnt move as easily as it did 20 years ago, but dont let that stop you. It is Never Too Late to Get Back in the Game So what is holding you back? Is it your age?
