Details: The World Provider mixes next-level performance art with old-school Broadway/Vegas showmanship, fine-tuning the irresistible combination of catchy tunes, cheap-keyboard sonics, and over-the-top theatrical performance. The superheroic alter ego of mild-mannered writer/filmmaker Malcolm Fraser, the WP got started in Toronto in 1999, coming up alongside some friends you might have heard of Peaches, Feist, Gonzales, Mocky, Taylor Savvy. Eventually they all moved on to Europe and varying degrees of fame. The WP, in a misguided display of non-conformity, stayed on these shores, relocating to Montreal. Since then, the WP has released Enabler in 2004 and the Lost Illusions EP in 2006, featuring the CBC Radio and Pitchfork fave Valentine (featuring Feist), both on Montreals Ta-Da Records. Originally a one-man band, the WP has in recent years expanded to various lineups, appearing either as a duo with wife/collaborator Stacey DeWolfe or with a full band featuring Stacey, Montreal indie-film queen Kara Blake on keys and Besnard Lakes rock goddess Olga Goreas on drums. HARD FEELINGS is the new, self-released WP album, featuring Valentine and two other Lost Illusions tracks plus nine previously unheard songs. It was recorded between 2006 and 2008 under the watchful eyes of Jace Lasek and Dave Smith at Montreals reknowned Breakglass Studio. It also features contributions from Montreal indie-rock luminaries such as Steve Raegele (The Beshard Lakes), Mike Feuerstack (Bell Orchestre, Wooden Stars, Snailhouse) and Warren Auld (Royal Mountain Band).
