I grew up in the small town of Lima, Ohio where I played in bands and with friends and recorded a few CD's that are no longer available. After high school I moved to Boston and went to, and eventually graduated from Berklee College of Music with a degree in Songwriting. While in Boston I was the frontman for a rock band and a metal band, which played across New England and New York City. After graduation I moved to Nashville where I am pursuing a career in songwriting. I am also a teacher at the National Guitar Summer Workshop. If you like music that is familiar yet different and mixes lots of styles, you should take a listen. You can also go to my personal website at : wrightrecords.net
