Details: Mortal Clay is a two member project hashing out music of utopic nihilism ranging from aggressive to ethereal. They have an artistic musical aim through keyboard sequences electric guitar and vocals which is not limited by genre formulas self imposed or otherwise. Founded in 1999 with three albums to date and a fourth is in the works. "...nothing less than the collision of their minds, which is what you want from people. They take thin layers of sound and then shake them, attacking with vibrant vocals, or moody guitar. There are brisk, churning rhythms, but this isnt necessarily left-field Industrial. Its something else..." -Mick Mercer "Mortal Clay's music is heavily rhythmic and decidedly left-field, in an inventive, individualistic, style that doesn't tip its hat overmuch to any particular set of generic conventions. It pulls in fragments of folk, elements of industrial. There are strange sweeps of electronics and interludes of neo-classical ambience followed by outbreaks of pumelling drums. Guitar feeds in and out, voices come and go. It's organic and flowing, staccato and technology-driven. If they have folk clubs in the future, this is the stuff that you will hear therein."-Nemesis To Go
