Details: Bruce Warren from WXPB in Philadelphia says this about the debut album: "...this record is strangely fascinating. It has an overall vibe to it that reminds me of old Dan Hicks The Hot Licks, Geoff Maria Muldaur's "Brazil," and yes, damned me for saying this, Jimmy Buffet. Maybe if Daniel Johnston was a parrothead, but hey, this ain't Margaritaville, my friends." Joe Maurer and Lucas Stangl met at Northland College in Ashland, Wisconsin in 1995. Since that initial jam session in Joe's third floor dorm room, Coconut and The Duke have been making music together. Joe is trained as a Landscape Architect and Artist. He lived and worked in this capacity in New York City and New Jersey until he burned out on the East Coast. He currently resides in Eau Claire, Wisconsin with a studio space overlooking the Chippewa River. Although waffle-cut fries are Lucas' favorite, he will occasionally tolerate a batch of regular-cut French Fries. It is this cuisine suffering that inspires him to make music.
