Details: Leo's music resembles an adventure that transcends time, place, cultures and differences, inviting the listener to awake to other places, realities and questions. Leo is a young pianist, composer and multi-instrumentalist artist. He doesn't limit his work to music only, he also relies heavily on visual expressions such as animation, photography and various forms of visual art to support his music work. A perfect example of a renaissance man. Leo started showing great interest on all expressions of art and creativity at an early age. Born in a highly music inclined family, Leo started formal music academic training at the early age of 7 and continued for several years, which helped him become familiarized with the academic and technical aspects of music. He then began to progressively shape his work identity with the assistance of several exceptional music maestros who coached him in the different areas of composition and performing while largely following a self-taught routine. This helped him, to reach a unique and special predisposition to create his own composition rules, which eventually gave birth to his current unique contribution to the genre of contemporary instrumental music. Today being only 28 years old, unlike most of the non-pop composers we see today, Leos style was forged through apprenticeship which allowed him to grow with an integral and also philosophical vision of what making music is about. This old-fashioned way of learning music, although almost dead today, made of him the exceptional composer and artist he is. Trained as an anthropologist as well as a professional musician, Leos view of the world, his great human nature and understanding of diversity has greatly influenced his works. Leos multidimensional field of work is wide and varied, although his style remains quite unique and strongly distinguishable. Be prepared for an experience always reminiscent of metaphors, imagination, voyages transcending borders, age and cultures. His genre is often difficult to categorize as it could easily fall under a movie soundtrack, contemporary instrumental, classical or even world music. Leo currently resides in Southern Florida, U.S. For additional information feel free to email Leo at leo@bluedream-music.com.
