Blues Meets Rockabilly and Rock'n'Roll in an original mix of new original songs 9 MP3 Songs BLUES: Rockin' Blues, BLUES: Texas Style Details: "The King of the Rockabilly blues" In 1995 Louis King and the Liars Klub released their debut self-titled album to critical acclaim and picked up 'Album of the Year' from Melbourne's Age Newspaper. The year also saw the band play support to legendary acts, Screaming J Hawkins and Buddy Guy as well as having their song "Werewolf Baby" nominated for a A.R.I.A. Award after being covered by Sydney personality Doug Mulray. In 1996 Louis King and combo continued making inroads by playing shows around the country including their first East Coast Blues Festival. With sales of their debut CD still going strong they decided to put off the release of their next album until the following year. Louis King and the Liars Klub released the follow up to their critically acclaimed first release last year. 'Hoodoo Man' received rave reviews and national airplay in its first few weeks of release. What started out as a predominantly blues act has now managed to cross over into the mainstream/commercial market because of the broad appeal 'Hoodoo Man' has. As TV Week's Jeff Jenkins said, "Hoodoo Man will be a favourite with blues aficionados, the cocktail set and people who just love a great groove". With Australia already recognising Louis King and the Liars Klub - King picked up Best New Male Artist at the Australian Blues Music Awards in '97 - the band have started making inroads into the US market, with a recent CD review in 'Blues Revue' and having the song "Lonesome for Long" featured in a forthcoming US movie. 1998 Extensive touring throughout australia including as featured opening act for BB King After a self imposed Hiatus Louis's 3rd CD "Sharp Like A Bowling Ball" was released in early March 2003 and contained 10 new original tracks with a stated aim of making the "blues party album of the year".
