Details: Brian Gordon is a Canadian singer/songwriter who has been writing, recording and performing music across Canada in various bands for years. 2008 marks the year that Brian finally released his first solo project, called "Everywhere's The Sun". His songs have been called "modern folk" as they often reflect on his life, his family, and experiences. Within the first week of it's release, Brian's debut solo album had sales in Australia, Germany, the UK, and all throughout North America. His Canadian acoustic songwriting has been dubbed a "pseudo-celtic folk rock" and is both fun as well as introspective. Often compared to the likes of the Barenaked Ladies, the Indigo Girls or Bruce Cockburn, Brian's lyrics and stylings are receiving great reviews by industry and fans alike.
