Gladyz E. Thomas is a new female Hip/Hop Soul and blues singer. Gladyz debuts her new family produced CD, EP, "My Place". The album is a mixture of hip/hop and R B. Her sound appeals to young and older adults. Her debut album contains a remake of the Thomas and Taylor soul classic, "You Can't Blame Love" which was on the British Charts for more than 36 weeks in 1986. Gladys mixes Hip/hop and R B along with her sister Carrie Thomas (Spoken/Wird artist and Actress). Her brother is SMIGGZ, rapper/producer. Her brother Lamar, Jr. created the dynamic new beats on the title track, "My Place". Hot tracks on this album to watch is the title track, My Place, Ain't it Good Love, and the blinding spoken/word/vocal/rap track, "Why you treat me so bad". This track is new, freash, exciting and was written and produced by Gladyz's father, Lamar Sr. She is currently a sophomore at Cheyney University . Gladyz will be doing promotional performances for her new CD during the summer in and around the Poconos, New York and possibly England.
