Peggy Seeger - Folk Legend "A talented young musician...a pleasure to have on stage and listen to." Brett Hooton -Folksuite101 "From classical to jazz to folk, the album reveals an up-and-coming musician with a talent for creating music that is richly diverse and, at times, utterly captivating. Overall, Our Passing Nows is an impressive debut. The quality of its arrangements, the contributing musicians, and Olives songwriting and guitar playing are destined to win new audiences with every listen. His voice is strikingly deep, expressive and playful, frequently calling to mind Steven Page from the Barenaked Ladies." Derek Olives debut album, Our Passing Nows, is a delicious blend of perceptive lyrics and unique instrumental guitar work, reminiscent of everyone from Bruce Cockburn to Michael Hedges. From light-hearted looks at relationships to insightful appraisals of modern-day society, Dereks ability to turn a phrase has impressed audiences on both coasts of North America. On Our Passing Nows, Derek is backed by musicians who are well known on the Montreal scene: Denis Chich (Corneille) on percussion and drums, Geoff Holbrook (Flotilla) on bass and Marianne Trudel on the piano. The instrumental guitar work, whether laying down a groove or an unfolding melody, is for the consummate guitar lover or the uninitiated. Derek studied classical guitar for over 15 years in Montreal, Quebec. His past endeavors have included a six-song demo with internationally renowned jazz cellist Eric Longworth (2002) and a featured appearance on Amnesty Internationals Voices Rising cd (2005). In 2003 Derek had the privilege of opening for legendary folk singer Peggy Seeger. Derek has performed at a wide range of festivals including the Northwest Folklife Festival (Seattle, Washington, USA, 2003) and the Ottawa Chamber Festival (2004). Derek loves the mountains and has spent a considerable amount of time exploring peaks in Banff and Jasper as well as in the coastal mountains of B.C. He's also an avid cyclist and loves to travel with his bike. He has cycled in Mexico (2002), Eastern Europe (2003) and the Atlantic Provinces (2005). Derek is co-founder of the Montreal-based group Rhythmic Earth Stewards, a non-profit organization that raises money through concerts for community-based organizations who are trying to remedy environmental and social injustices. Derek is also founder of the Montreal Fingerstyle Guitar Association.
