Bad-boy synth-pop tweaked with modern electro-industrial flair and salty tongue-in-cheek lyrics. 11 MP3 Songs ELECTRONIC: Synthpop, ELECTRONIC: Industrial Show all album songs: Pump It Songs Details: Retrolust is two-man group dedicated to a rebirth of 80's synth-pop through a fusion of modern electronic and industrial music. Retrolust stands apart from the crowd with their pure mix of atmospheric swirling synthesizers, industrial noises, smooth beats and ground shattering hooks. The two members of Retrolust (Garrett Kai and Trevor Denounce) met in 2006 on an online music-posting site. Upon hearing each other's music the two decided to collaborate. After the completion of their first song together they discovered a sound, method and purpose that would be the basis for Retrolust. Since then, the two have evolved from solo-songwriters into a coherent song-producing machine. Their vastly different musical styles has molded together to form a whole new sound. With their strong sonic arsenal the two quickly found themselves amongst piles of material. In June of 2007, Retrolust released "BAD RECEPTION", a 10-song album focused on themes of Love, Confusion and Anxiety. The cd is for sale on CDBaby and iTunes. (cdbaby.com/cd/retrolust) Retrolust is currently promoting Bad Reception and Pump It, while building a fan-base online.
