Rory's love for music began at an early age. At age 13, he began trumpet lessons. He also studied other brass instruments through junior high and high school. While in high school, most of his free time was spent playing with local bands, doing studio recording, and playing in local churches. Inspired by artists such as Stevie Wonder and Ray Charles, Rory took up an interest in keyboards and synthesizers. He then formed a group called Intercession with members of his home church, St. Philip Lutheran in Compton, CA. They played at various functions and churches in the Los Angeles area. Later, the group expanded to include members of other Christian denominations, changed its name to Inner Session, and began playing for larger audiences. Rory has performed at many venues with Inner Session and had several headliner concerts. Although Inner Session is no longer active, Rory has continued recording, performing and spreading his message through his music. Rory writes most of the music he performs. Although a form of contemporary gospel, his music is often described as different and a refreshing change from the usual. Rory enjoys and writes many styles of music and he has always kept his focus on God's Word, using his gifts to God's glory.
