He is a household name in his hometown of Boise, Idaho, where he also owns and operates one of the state's finest recording studios - The Audio Lab. And for the past 13 years, Fulton has served as singer and guitarist in the group House of Hoi Polloi, which has recorded five albums and toured extensively throughout the Northwest. 4 years ago he began a solo endeavor. Fulton first performed his Solo material live when he opened for Tori Amos in front of 3,000 people at the Idaho Center. Since then, he has released two Solo CDs on his Uncommon Records label - a full-length album, "Shock Remission," and 'Said Heard' his newest released Nov. 8th 2005. Fulton has also recently opened for such acclaimed artists as Jewel, Shaun Colvin, John Hiatt, Mindy Smith and the Wallflowers. Fulton is also passionate about making his community a better place. In addition to performing for a variety of benefit concerts over the years, he serves as mentor to a wide array of local musicians and engineers, provides job-shadowing opportunities and internships, and gets involved in many projects with youths. He is also the Creator and founder of 'Words Music' a showcase of singer songwriters in which there are a number of Solo artists who play 2 songs solo and then after an intermission come back to join together with Drums, Piano Cello, Lap steel and various other instruments to perform a group playing a song from each artist as a large 'super band' this has been done twice and has nearly sold out both times in Large Intimate Theater settings. The admission price includes a CD and handmade program with pictures and Bios of each Artist!
