Eclectic music whose roots are found in creative and spontaneous worship 12 MP3 Songs in this album (53:09) ! Related styles: FOLK: Alternative Folk, SPIRITUAL: Christian Rock Details: From separate stories and adventures, through different doors of religion, we were gathered by worship and became friends and family. We watched our religious worlds unravel and our desperation exceed our fear of being misunderstood. We belong to the church family of River of Life Outreach in Lyons, GA. Whatever we do beyond these doors is an outstretched arm of who we are at home. As music, art, and media is integrated into our worship, we successfully cross the imaginary line between the secular and sacred. Many who come enjoy the spiritual implications of artistic freedom in the church. Like the freestanding frame of an Aeolian harp, the Spirit of the wind moves us and we groan. Our music is an invitation to open the windows. Take off your shoes. Feel for a change. And when you can't feel, we invite you to dream. "Passage of Freedom" is the first album released by Aeolian. It is an eclectic blend of spontaneous worship fused with thought provoking lyrics. Musically, the songs are expressed in strains of folk, celtic and world influences with hints of jazz and rock. Teri Williams: vocals Eric Love: vocals Alan Mearns: acoustic guitar, electric guitar, classical guitar, penny whistle Noah Bullard: bass, percussion, hand drums Paulette Wooten: keyboards Micah Williams: percussion, hand drums Ryan Stephens: percussion, hand drums Michael Crisp: percussion, hand drums Scott Beverly: percussion, hand drums Rick Morales: drums Sarah Stephens: cello
