Alanna's smooth vocals capture the warmth of an "afternoon in the park." Influenced by Astrud Gilberto, she brings her own style by combining the ease of a soft breeze mixed with New York city's heartbeat. 5 MP3 Songs in this album (19:54) ! Related styles: POP: Quirky, ROCK: Adult Alternative Pop/Rock People who are interested in Aimee Mann Astrud Gilberto Dido should consider this download. Details: Born in Hawaii, and now residing in Brooklyn, New York, this songstress seems to thrive in contrast. Hard to pin her look down, Alanna is a tall mix of Filipino and Caucasian. She learned how to play flute and then made a switch to trombone in high school. Early on, she had a love for anything vintage and appreciated jazz, samba, funk, alternative electronic music. Juggling modeling and school, she began singing songs like Girl From Ipanema and Corcovado with a jazz band in college. She also formed a band in LA called Chocolate Seastorm who just recently released two albums from recordings a few years back. Upon moving to New York, Alanna began to write more and collaborate with new producers. She was introduced to Andrew Wyatt (Fires of Rome) by a photographer and then formed an electronic band called OKtoberlight. Her first published song was a fun one they wrote together called Pop Goes My Heart." It was in the film, Music and Lyrics and Hugh Grant sang it. On this self-released EP, Alanna worked with producers Kip Packard, Joe Davi and Patrick Quade. Currently, she is recording more songs in New York for her next release.
