Details: Consonance is a spirit-filled gospel group that sings both contemporary and traditional quartet music. They hailed from the San Francisco Bay Area. The group is receiving widespread acclaim for their smooth choreography and passionate performances. The members are Mack Williams, Paul Foster, Jr., Rev. Melvin Williams, Rev. Sam Cox and Bobby Reed. Members of the group were individual performers before joining their voices in 1996. Individually, they have performed with the Whispers, Tower of Power, The Right Kind, Stevie Wonder and Curtis Mayfield just to name a few. Together, the group has performed at the Monterey Blues Festival, San Francisco Juneteenth Festival, Pittsburg Seafood Festival, Marin City Blues Festival, Richmond Juneteenth Festival and other festivals, churches, banquets and affairs throughout Northern California. Their style can be driving gospel with a funk influence, to sweet soul with a hint of "Temptations" and the "O'Jays". And what is so awesome about them is their ability to play what they call "good news blues" and then switch to contemporary gospel that has inspired audiences every time they perform. They are smooth in their steps and are a crowd pleaser regardless of the venue. A trademark of the group is their live performances are always different while being exciting and always great. Once you have heard this group live, you know it is special. "See The Light" is their first project. They are currently working on two other projects to be released in 2009. If you like gospel quartet singing and smooth R&B, then Consonance is a group you will love.
