Jack Lavoie's songs resonate with a gentle wisdom which can only be achieved as experiences are accumulated. His perspective offers keen observations about the world around him. His song writing style is a prism: multi-faceted and reflecting the myriad elements in life and love which resonate through him.

True passion and unbridled love for music culminate in thoughtful songs brimming with positivism. There is a feverish, urgent quality to this energetic troubadour's voice, reminiscent of such song writing greats as Elvis Costello and Van Morrison. His songs, his sound, however, are all his own. His capacity of going from a soft melody to a vibrant rock song makes it hard to put a label on this artist's music. His uniqueness stands out.

True to the classic story, Jack first fell into music with his brother as a teenager when they pooled their resources and shared a single guitar. His musical ventures were limited to family functions and friendly gatherings around the bonfires of his youth. Music remained a constant but underlying passion for Jack through marriage and child-rearing until his talent was revealed and revered by the Demo Clip contest sponsored by MusiquePlus.

Feeling confident that the timing was finally right, he released his debut album New Warning. Since then, the accolades have been pouring in for his impassioned live shows and his recordings alike . 2003/2004, brought many new adventures for Jack as he showcased in the Canadian Music Festival, his song "Reason" garnered him an honourable mention award in the international John Lennon song writing contest and won over the hearts of fans as they chose him for the People's Choice Award at "Les Dcouvertes de la Chanson de Magog".

He then went back to the writing block and finished writing his second album, La Pura Vida, which is set for release in September 2005. Jack's music speaks for itself, cries out to people of all ages and ethnicity, his philosophy of life is simple and poignant, as he would say: "Happiness is elusive but worth fighting for...and when it all comes down to choosing a way and a why to your life ... I let my heart guide me through mine ."
