At the age of four years old, Kristi walked around her house using a hairbrush as a microphone singing I Saw the Light by Wynonna Judd to her father (her biggest fan). It was then that she knew that she wanted someday to become a country singing star. She started her vocal training in high school with her current vocal coach, Jenny Myers, in Fresno, CA. They decided to give the school talent show a try and at 16 she won studio time in a local recording studio. She cut her first vocal demo and realized her dream of becoming a country artist was beginning to happen. In November of 2004, Kristi entered a talent competition in Nashville, TN and came in first place in the talent showcase. On a return trip to Nashville in April 2005, Kristi was introduced to Nashville songwriter/producer, David Norris. The result of this meeting has been the production of Kristi's first album - Read My Lipstick. This album was recorded with Nashville producer David Norris and co-producer Jim Hyatt.
