Details: About London Exchange Formed in 1988 London Exchange brought together elements from there new wave/alternative past with the dance/freestyle scene that was taking off in miami and new york in the late 80's.The band went on to chart (3) 12" singles "Memories Of You" (1989),"Lost Without Your Touch"(1990),and "Girl Inside The Magazine"(1991). A techno side project was also formed called "Deus Ex Machina" which scored a number 1 club hit in Miami and Chicago with "The Threat of Aggression". To mark there 20 yr anniversary the group has released a Special Re-Mix/Re-Model collection of remixes and two new songs "Tonight" and "Fall Part" with contributions by renowned D.J/Producer/Re-Mix/ Artist(s) Dan Carrone/ Tears of Technology (New Orleans) Junior Kain/Arvy (Sao Paulo) Azzimov (Ukraine) and Peter Marr Evil Twin (Miami). Renowned Japanese artist Hajime Sarayama has provided the sexy robot image front cover and CBS Music Inc licensed the Spock/Leonard Nimoy sample featured on the Kaine/Arvy remix of "Memories of You". David Hanono of "The Voice In Fashion" also contributed backing vocals on the new song "Fall Apart" as well as the original "Memories of You". Brain Hazard of Resonance Mastering in Huntington Bch CA has done a great job of mastering the project and also breathed new life into the Original "Memories of You" Club Mix adding some punch and bottom!!! Peter Marr original London Exchange Producer has also lent his talents to the project and Produced the first new LE song in 17 yrs "Fall Apart"! Original members Christopher Phipps and Martin Davis are doing select live performances in 2009 so
