Part One provides the reader with a provocative insight into the aspects of our current society that have contributed to the demise of the average American Investor as we knew him. Everything from the stock market crashes, political and legislative changes to the pathetic parade of financial professionals being indicted for Ponzi schemes. Not only have these events had a critical impact on the day to day trading as well as the overall operation of our stock market but more importantly, it has had a tremendous effect on how Americans view and participate in the market. The clear unveiling of each of these issues or events is presented in a way that every investor will clearly understand how it has specifically affected the market. The reader then moves forward to Part Two, which is comprised of real life strategies and practices that will empower the average investor and encourage his rebirth as a new educated Global eShareholder that can build wealth in any market. This is no longer your grandmothers stock market and you can no longer invest as if it is!
