Details: Stephen Chadwick, Nashville, Texas There's something comfortable about Stephen Chadwick's music - like slipping into your "good" jeans before heading out for the evening. He's Honky-Tonk in an uncertain time - true to his roots and proving to be a master of the genre. But don't label him or call him predictable. There's nothing retro about heartache and hell-raising, and Stephen's sound is as timeless as spilled beer and loneliness. However, he has a richness in his vocals and a devilish cleverness in his arrangements that hit you like a sly wink on the dance floor and leave you feeling part-thrilled and part guilty for enjoying it so much. It's that very cleverness - his song choices, lyrics, and attitude - that play with the Honky-Tonk tradition so well here. Stephen goes from heartbroken to hopeful while keeping that sense of mischief throughout. This is real-deal Honky-Tonk, with a twist that will keep you dancing and smiling to yourself all night long.
