Details: The album This Rounds On Me is truly a genuine collage of songs dug from the bar ditches of a hidden, less traveled caliche road. After playing his share of bar scene sets, Beau has developed what has become a sense of what the music in his mind sounds like. Performing mostly solo acoustic acts, he sat down with a handful of talented musicians who added the final touches to his debut album. Listening to an acoustic sound original written material has always been my favorite, but for the album, I just wanted to add a little something melodically without taking the true, unpolished simplicity out of the song. Some include the full band sound, others simply collaborated with a lone fiddle, harmonica, or pedal steel. The songs consist of stories descriptions of people places found in the pastures of small town life, such as his birthplace residence of Brenham, TX. As well as exposing a guaranteed chuckle humored side of life as heard in Bud Light Girl Ridin the Gravy Train on Biscuit Wheels. After a 4 year stint in playin rodeo, Beau obtained his degree at Texas A&M University in 2000. This is where his love for Texas Music ignited after playing back porch tailgate shows with musician friend Travis Winkler, he decided to shape his songwriting craft and begin entertaining the bar scene acoustically. What a treat it has been having the opportunity of opening shows for the folks like Hayes Carll, Adam Carroll, Larry Joe Taylor, Max Stalling and other unbelievable songwriters. An amazing feeling I simply cant describe appreciate heartily. Drivin on a county road 13 miles out of town, with the window rolled down, 83 degrees with a tall boy in your lap best describes Beaus song on the album This Rounds On Me according to singer/songwriter Winkler. The scent of small rural farm life can be understood in the tunes Whitetail Bucks Bluecats Weimar Cowboys Playing Dominoes in a Roosevelt, TX Caf. I have always loved songs that portrayed a simple dirt road side of life. Guess I got lucky growing up around it and painting pictures for people through words and watching them smile as they relate to them.
