He certainly didn't covet or lobby for the responsibility. Little Junior's uncle, Arthur "Big Boy" Crudup started the legacy back in the 1940's. Big Boy's three sons, The Crudup Brothers picked up the torch after his passing in 1974. The leader of The Crudup Brothers Blues Band, Jonas Crudup passed the torch to Little Junior from his death bed in 2003. Little Junior is still trying to grasp the respon- sibility and divine priviledge of being entrusted with such a sacred honor. His background surely suggests he is worthy of being the "chosen one". He's a consummate stage actor and has starred in four independent feature films. He's a seasoned blues singer from slugging it out in the trenches of the Bay Area blues scene for twenty years. He's lived the blues for forty-plus years. The weight of the torch in Little Junior's hand is starting to feel lighter with each passing day. God doesn't make mistakes!!
