Details: Through the last 7 years vocal/guitar duo Pat Y Chaco has fascinated audiences everywhere theyve been from Colombian top academic contest to Yale University in New Haven to Ricardo Gabriellis film Cuando Rompen Las Olas. Their sound is a dynamic ensemble of vocals and guitar defining a new music genre by combining jazz, Colombian roots, world and popular music. On 2009 Pat y Chaco released their self produced album Satyagraha through the independent label ChacoWorldMusic. It includes Special guests collaborations from top Colombian musicians such as Antonio Arnedo, Gabriel Rondon and Martina Camargo. This studio album has performed extremely well in the Colombian independent market with excellent reviews and radio play on national radio stations. REVIEWS The unique style developed by Pat y Chaco is spectacular!!! Their sound is rich, fresh and smooth and their lyrics are dreamy and surrealistic. Patys voice is sometimes sweet and sometimes aggressive while Chacos guitar shows a unique style with very contrasting influences from Colombian native drums to Jimi Hendrix to Joe Pass. Gabriel Rondon (Guitarrist and arranger- One of the Jazz pioneers in Colombia with a five decades career) An amazing performance by a beautiful voice that knows and feels every single word she sings, joined by an instrument that creates moods, improvises and mixes extraordinary guitar techniques. Manuel Bernal Martinez (Musical Investigator and University professor) The musical journey through Pat Y Chaco album Satyagraha sets different moods, styles, musical genres and distant cultures. Collaborations from Colombian top musicians such as jazz pioneers Antonio Arnedo and Gabriel Rondon and traditional Tambora singer Martina Camargo get Pat y Chaco sound even more interesting.
