Details: Sarah Elizabeth's ancient primal beautied voice rises out of Kentucky womb, where diamonds are born, and embraces all the world. Hearing Sarah's mystic indigenous voice re-energizes, inspires and transports me to another place.--Ron Whitehead, poet Sarah Elizabeth, 29, has performed her music in 18 countries. Her voice carries the power of the ghosts of Patsy Cline, Hank Williams, and Janis Joplin. Grammy Nominated Native American Musician, Tony Redhouse accompanies Sarah on Native American flute and drum plus many other instruments from indigenous cultures of the world. Will Ragland delivers soaring electric guitar solos to soothe the soul of any Southern Rock lover. Sarah Elizabeth's voice and acoustic guitar have never been captured with such crystal clarity. Recorded by Kevin Ratterman late night at The Funeral Home in the sultry July heat of Kentucky, Sarah Elizabeth's voice drips with the intense emotions of love and loss, grief and empowerment, and activist anthems. With DON'T DIE YET, Sarah picks herself and the listener off the floor to live again with bold strength. This album is a spiritual experience. Sarah recorded DON'T DIE YET immediately upon returning from the Sacred Black Hills of South Dakota where she spent a great deal of time on the Sioux Reservation with the 13 Indigenous Grandmothers. Sarah went through what can only be described as shaman medicine woman bootcamp. She was also honored to participate in the Sundance and many other sacred ceremonies. This spiritual energy is present in every song on the album. Listen and you will be forever changed.
