Coming out of Cincinnati, Ohio -- a new Rap sound is on the scene. Out of the Well Established Entertainment camp comes a hot new artist J-Bills. Born and raised in Cincinnati, J-Bills brings an old-style flavor to bear as he tells his story of life in the 'Natti. Growing up in Cincinnati, Jay (as he's called by his friends) was influenced by his older brother that was also in the rap business back in the early '90s. He had a strong involved with an up an coming local rap group back then. "I used to go to they studio and tell my brother to let me get on a track. He use to always say, 'hold up, I got you', but I never got on a track." It wouldnt be long before Jay found his way to microphone of his own. By the time Jay was teenager, he had met several young rapper that like himself want to express themselves. "I got real hungry and start recording around the city with different rappers -- I really started networking and meeting new people." Although he was young at the time, Jay had some limited success. Not long after, Jay bumped into a childhood friend C-Weez. Both were into the rap thing pretty deep by then. After catching up on old times and finding that they both had gotten into the rap game, Jay and C-Weez exchanged some flows. Instantly they knew that they had something unique. They began to work at it on the regular. It wasn't long before they all decided that they should record some of the work that they had been practicing. And soon more of their friends in the rap business joined in. They decided to form a business that they all could be a part of -- the name Well Established Entertainment was decided upon. Jay was nominated to be the leader because had has shown the most initiative and was giving everyone direction on how they could make the business grow. Over the next 18 months or so, the Well Established Entertainment camp cranked out 4 volumes of their brand of rap. They decided to sell and promote each of them to gain some notoriety in the Mid-West region as a up and coming force in the world of wrap. Although they met with some success, the Well Established Entertainment camp wanted to do more. One of the camp members, Primo, had been telling Jay about his brother in Houston and how he had liked some of their work. Promos brother had connections in the music business and might be able to help them. Over the next few months, Well Established Entertainment and Legal Hustle Entertainment began to talk and build a relationship. It was decided that Legal Hustle Entertainment -- a distribution, marketing, media, and artist relations service -- would help J-Bills produce his first solo project. The project, entitled Up Close and Personal, began in January of 2006 and final work on the project end in early August 2006. The official album release is scheduled for October 10, 2006. I want people to understand where Im coming from and where I am today.
