For Spurlock, music is a release, and her music is a release for her listeners. Music gives me a high and a release like nothing else in this world. It is amazing to create music and use my emotions to perform it for people. Spurlocks songs send an electric message of musical energy to her listeners, with engaging lyrics and melodic power. Music is a method of seeking. Just ask Spurlock. She embraces questions common to all people and explores those questions with the undeniable power of her music. I write about things and situations that perplex me. Writing songs is a way to figure out answers, not necessarily to the situation but more for inner realization. Spurlock passes on this exploratory potency to her listeners and creates a communicative environment of seeking for all interested fans. Great songwriting confronts life and thus requires a songwriter who is in tune with life. Life inspires me. Every instance in life. Im constantly experiencing new situations and everything is constantly changing (Writing) is an inner self-release, an outlet to achieve some sort of understanding about the world that Im living in. Spurlocks attention to the details of life is what imbues her songwriting with such passion and honesty and that captures listeners. Spurlock has opened for Lisa Loeb and has received offers from the likes of KT Tunstall and Imogen Heap. She relocated to New York City in February 2007 and has been experiencing open doors ever since. She is currently recording a new EP, with Gnarls Barkley producer, Ben Allen. The EP will be released summer of '08! Spurlocks songcraft calls to mind both classic electronically rooted rock greats but also pushes
