Quirky mix of instrumental guitar music and hard rock ala Chili Peppers, Zappa, Hendrix and Mr. Bungle - guest guitarists include Mattias Eklundh and Dweezil Zappa - 100 profits donated to disaster relief organizations. 12 MP3 Songs ROCK: Hard Rock, ROCK: Instrumental Rock Details: Statement from guitarist/vocalist Bumblefoot (taken from CD liner notes) Originally, this CD was going to be called "Guitars SUCK" After the tragedies of September 11th, there was no question but to dedicate this CD to the incomparable honor, courage, and bravery of all those who gave their lives to save others, to the memory of all those no longer with us, to the comfort and healing of those suffering with personal losses. And also to commemorate the unbreakable goodness of the human spirit. In times of tragedy, we join together and are there for each other. Nothing can destroy the collective human spirit - those who try only make it stronger. Lastly, I dedicate this CD to YOU - I'm donating all the profits of this CD to the American Red Cross, but the truth is that you're donating it, through the purchase of this CD. So I'm dedicating this CD to your generosity, and thank you for helping those in their time of need. YOU make the world a better place. BUMBLEFOOT 10.2001  ARTIST BIO: Bumblefoot (aka Ron Thal) is a recording artist and international touring artist from NYC with seven albums released since 1995. Fronting the band as lead singer/guitarist, the music is hard rock, bordering on quirky and experimental. Known for his unusual guitar-work, Bumblefoot has been on the covers of guitar magazines around the world. His guitar playing can be heard in the Spanish guitar soloing of Jessica Simpson's "Irresistible" dance mix, the punky guitar riff of SpikeTV Network's "MXC" theme song, in the background of MTV's The Osbournes, The Real World, and much more... Bumblefoot works out of his studio in Princeton NJ where he collaborates with artists as a songwriter/producer and writes for publishing companies, video games and TV shows. Bumblefoot is a volunteer for the MS Research

Foundation (msrf.org), a non-profit organization that donates funds directly to Multiple Sclerosis research.
