Melodic beats with a ghetto twist 12 MP3 Songs HIP HOP/RAP: Rap, HIP HOP/RAP: Hip Hop Details: Music has moved Critical since he took his first baby steps, listening to a song playing over his mothers eight track stereo. He first learned the art of drumming from his father, a professional drummer. Criticals love for music spread to keyboarding as well as wind and percussion instruments. By the age of five, he was performing in his hometown, Minneapolis, Minnesota. Criticals love for music led him to enroll in a High School known for its state-of-the-art recording studio. There, he began focusing on his dream of becoming a Producer. Critical began recording projects with his group Impact, performing in clubs, community events receiving radio airplay. Enrolling in college for music, Critical begin to learn about the business side of the Music industry. He went on to intern with well-known Producer and Professional Musician, Morris Hayes who has played with Prince, Mazarati, Chaka Khan and many others. Hayes has produced over a dozen albums and been a professional musician for over two decades. Critical is on a mission to keep the crowd jumping, speakers bumping and heads bobbing. He feels the pain of music lovers waiting for their favorite artists album to drop only to discover that the only song they love on the album is the single they heard on the radio. Tupac Shakur was a major music influence in his life. His emotion and lyrics are what Critical admired most about Tupac. Criticals style in producing is heavily influenced by Rap, Jazz, Gospel and Techno music. Criticals solo album is scheduled to hit a neighborhood near you late 2006. His first single, Get Sic Wit It has a contagious hook and a beat that is truly heartfelt with a ghetto twist. Get ready to turn up the volume and dance with Critical.
