My main influence came to me during the events of 911, the year terrorists used commercial jet-liners to destroy buildings and lives. Although the unthinkable happened that day, all UPS drivers, myself included, continued making their deliveries as word slowly got to us on route. It was then when I concluded that my childhood dreams hadn't been met, as was not those who lost their lives on that tragic day. Here I am today, living out a childhood dream to make music to dance to, make love to and to suit the moods of my listeners. My maturity has me in a musical cross genre. I grew up listening to all musics, so be prepared to enjoy the same musical joy-ride that I have been on for four decades. In other words, I have got about a few thousand sounds roaming around my head just waiting their turn to be composed. So sit back, relax and allow The Man In Brown to be your designated driver.
