"Bluesy Folk Roll With Jazz Attitude" "Americana Roots Music Con Moxie" 11 MP3 Songs ROCK: Americana, POP: Folky Pop Details: Overman is a Bay Area Legend and "Iron Man Of The Road". He's a poet and a master musician and "Bluesy Folk Roll with Jazz Attitude" is the best description of his music and performance. His singing and guitar playing are accurately described as "Berklee College of Caveman". Overman has long been regarded as one of the west coast's hardest working (as many as 379 performances in one year) and prolific artists. Overman's debut remains an impressive introduction to the songwriter and performer. "If I Were You" and "Twelve Main Highways" stand out as favorites. A fairly large group was assembled for this recording and bay area saxophonist Doug Rowan gets plenty of space. The Owens brothers play significant roles as guitarist / vocalist / coproducer (Scott) and bassist / vocalist (Craig). The late Gene Barnholt contributed outstanding keyboard and arrangement talent with drummer Johnny Craviotto filling out the core group. Percussionist Jim Greiner is present consistently and Jeffrey Wash plays beautiful fretless bass on the ballads. Fairly mainstream and radio-friendly production with stylistic diversity in songwriting make this record a favorite among the general public.
