Acoustic guitar moving through jazz, world, and classical 17 MP3 Songs CLASSICAL: New Age, JAZZ: World Fusion Details: The Agcsi-Tske Duo has been a continuous collaboration of nearly 25 years. They start their creative alliance whilst still being music students in Hungary, and are able to sustain their relationship despite the fact that Agcsi is living in Germany, and later in England and Tske is moving to Australia. Through the many versatile projects they undergo on their own individual musical paths they both are drawing on the never-ending wealth of the many new diverse cultural spheres they are encountering. Not surprisingly they constantly integrate new sounds and instruments and enjoy the creation and development of their very own musical expression. They thrive on their unique combination of jazz, classical and world music. Beside their main instrument, the classical guitar, they are also incorporating new instruments to their repertoire. On this album they use the Portuguese and classical bass guitars and the Hungarian zither for the very first time. These instruments are usually featuring in traditional folk music, and therefore add a new and unique quality to their own original compositions and improvisations. They feature in numerous concerts, TV- and Radio broadcasts around the world. Agcsi is living in London, and Tske has recently moved back to Budapest. They will go on a worldwide tour in 2007 to celebrate their 25th anniversary.
