

Mp3 Guagua - Psychotropical

Guagua's original "psychotropical jazz" blends guitar, piano horn melodies with tropical African, Caribbean Brazilian polyrhythms for a uniquely exuberant and danceable sound. 12 MP3 Songs in this album (73:10) ! Related styles: LATIN: Latin Jazz, WORLD: Caribbean Details: Guagua started like a Belgian beer the local culture blows in through the open window, and begins to ferment. On a cold Vermont night in January 04, composers Raph Groten and Geoff Kim opened the door to the "Radio Bean," Burlingtons musical incubator/coffee house, and invited a handful of local musicians to work up some of their original Cuban, Brazilian, and African-inspired compositions in front of the Radio Bean regulars. No charts, no set lists, not even a Real Book was to be seen that night or since. All we had to go on was our wide diversity of musical knowledge, some half-formed ideas and our common taste for diasporic African rhythm. From salsa, samba, and soukous to rumba, rara and calypso. The psychotropical jazz genre was born After those first few experimental gigs, the band evolved and grew from a half-dozen to a dozen, and grew the name "Guagua," but the oral tradition has continued - nothing is ever written down, but we show up each Tuesday at the Bean expecting to play something no one has ever heard before. Its a great way to build a repertoire, and when that repertoire gets up to a few dozen, then its time to lay down some tracks In 2006, we finally laid down our first disc, pan frito to critical acclaim. Our local arts rag called it the local jazz album of the year. Now we have brewed another batch of tunes, and pushed the envelope a little. Besides the Cuban flavored purple oranges, Newgalloo, The Newest Son, and Bolero Cha and the Brazilian-scented Not Your Mamas Samba and FKB, we have added multicultural numbers like the Brazilian/Cuban flip-flopper Psychotropical, the cut-time salsa number En Siete, the Druid-Santeria cocktail Celtic Bembe, the uncategorizable Korean Film Society and even the bands vocal debut in Afro Kimchi. Psychotropical is medicinal, psychoactive and addictive, perfect for kids, old folks and everyone in between. Psychotropical is available without prescription. Safe for use while driving, or while operating heavy equipment. Consult your doctor if euphoria lasts less than four hours.
