An inspired debut album borrowing from a big spectrum of rock, from Marillion to The Police to Michael Penn; the theater of progressive rock condensed into a three minute quote. (Kevin Gilbert anyone ?) think : progressive pop. 9 MP3 Songs ROCK: Progressive Rock, POP: Power Pop Details: if 'progressive pop' existed as a genre this record would probably be best described in that way. the songs are easy to digest on a first listen basis but reveal themselves better as they are given time. recorded in single day sessions mostly in Chicago's Gravity Studios by Doug McBride starting in 1995, the album has a freshness that comes from one-take performances and spur of the moment arrangement ideas. drummer Bill Swartz (Caviar, Fig Dish, Nectarine, The Girls, Ultraswiss) throughout and cellist Eric Remschneider (Smashing Pumpkins, Hole) on 'minus me' are highlights musically. About the Artist argentine songwriter Gustavo Lovato's 'love and gravity' CD is his first solo project. a previous CD 'spill of hope' was released in 1994 with long-time friend Bill Swartz under the band heading of Perfect Mismatch. Gustavo Lovato also played in Chicago based Fig Dish prior to their debut release 'that's what love songs often do" in 1995.
