Details: MESCHALINA started its activity in 1998 as a Rage Against The Machine tribute band. After many gigs which have been very important for the musical growth of the band, MESCHALINA recorded (in 1999) their first promo produced by Music Hall's. A new promo, titled "Shut Up", was recorded on 2000 with their own songs different from that of R.A.T.M., although inspired by the Californian band s music and joining the rap-metal s rage to the deep atmosphere of electronic music. MESCHALINA s first promo containing unpublished songs was recorded by the band itself in 2000. Its title was Shut Up and it contained 3 songs. Encouraged by the good reviews of Shut Up, the band decided to produce another, longer demo. It was again a self-production, but it was characterized by a better production than Shut up. The demo (2001), homonymous, recorded this time too in MESCHALINA s private recording studio, contained 8 unpublished songs and its aim was to promote the band in Italian magazines, web-zines, radio, etc. On 2002 the band had a line-up split and Vittorio Pignatelli (drums) Francesco Quintiliani (bass) and Antonella Montinaro (keyboards) left the band. A new bass player, Francesco Grieco, joined Stefano Teatini (vocals) and Matteo Valente (guitars) and with this line up then new Meschalina's sound was created and recorded on a new EP titled "Something to Die for". The new promo received great reviews all over the world, and the band signed a licence deal with RB Records Japan, for the distribution of the upcoming album The Flight Of Icarus, released only in Japan on September, 2005. The new Meschalina's album will be released in autumn, 2008.
