If you're a fan of melodic pop deepened with sincerity, The Day Traders are for you. In the style of 'Fountains of Wayne' meets 'Simon and Garfunkel', this songwriting duo has reached in deep to the depths of the human condition and created a composition of 11 MP3 Songs POP: Today's Top 40, POP: 70's Pop Details: Upon listening to our debut record, you may ask, how could this slick, polished, big league-sounding pop record just appear out of the blue? Questions abound. Are The Day Traders merely the concoction of boy band impresario Lou Pearlman? Did The Day Traders hire The Matrix to write and produce all their hooks? No, and no. But we didn't get to this point over night, and it hasn't been easy. We learned a lot from our experiences playing in a little known Connecticut-based band called The Dent. Perhaps you heard of us? No? I didn't think so. Those familiar with The Dent's music will likely be surprised by The Day Traders. Gone are the retro-string sections and the melancholy rainy day ballads both of which defined our unique sound. In its place are fun, polished, passionate pop/rock songs, made to be heard blasting from car stereos on Top 40 and rock radio stations. Our producer Saul Zonana really helped us do what we've always just wanted to do: Pop Out! So that's where the story ends, and begins. Have a listen!
