Exquisitely produced, originally modern Americana roots folk rock delivered with passion and compassion from the heartland. 10 MP3 Songs FOLK: Folk-Rock, ROCK: Americana Details: By TIM BROUK tbrouk@journalandcourier Joe Peters is putting the final touches on a new album, tentatively titled Red, Black and Blue. The singer-songwriter describes the 10 tracks as having a bit more angst with a more straightforward folk-rock feel compared to his previous releases, which had a more world-beat sound and feel. The album is being recorded by Malachi Jagers at Scott Greeson's home studio. A singer-songwriter himself, Jagers has been busier behind the mixing board lately. In recent years he has churned out discs for Larry Dimmick, Jeff Anderson, Ross Larimore and more. Jagers also plays electric guitar, bass, drums and percussion on the album. Peters' disc features loads of guest musicians. His bandmates in Deep Simple, Linda Hicks and Christi Clore, handle back-up vocals. The environmental protest song "An Inconvenient Truth" is Peters and Jagers' "Good Vibrations." More than 50 tracks are used including violin work by Bethany Jones. Peters said he was looking for an Indian sound to match the tablas and timpani drums and Jones nailed it. Pedro Alloza, who jammed with Peters at the Dec. 29 show at Klein Brot Haus, lent some tasty, bluesy guitar licks to the songs "I Can't Help You" and "Rollin' Down the Road." Alloza was visiting Lafayette with his twin brother, Manuel, from Madrid, Spain. Peters and Pedro never met before Dec. 29 and Pedro Alloza had never been to America before Lafayette. He bought an Eric Johnson Fender Stratocaster from Guitar Center in Indianapolis to commemorate his American music debut. Peters hopes the disc will be finished by the Feb. 9 big Shirley Martin Scholarship for Young Songwriters benefit concert at the Lafayette Theater, 600 Main St. Peters and Jagers will perform a set. People who are interested in Eric Clapton Cat Stevens Mark Knopfler should consider this download.
