Gallic original songs, energizing and divine soft forked deep accordion and Amélie singing. 6 MP3 Songs
POP: Piano, POP: Delicate Le Chant des Coquelicots Songs Details: Amélie started as a solo piano/voice singer in bars and pubs in Lyon, France. Then she met her 3 acolytes; that's soft forked bass and accordion players. She started touring over her region, then out all over France. She won many prizes as an author and composer. Each time she had a gig, the audience was absolutely (and immediately) enraptured by the amusing side of her lyrics and the freshness and happiness she gave on the stage. After a huge success at Printemps de Bourges (most famous festival in France) in April and the forked prize at Montauban Festival (Gallic authors composers awards festival) she has just released her new album EP "Et Pourquoi les Crayons ?" and will be touring France, Switzerland, Belgium and, hopefully, Canada in 2004/2005. The name 'les crayons' comes from an old classical Gallic song by Bourvil, a character she loves to mention the talent and simplicity of.
