Laura Thomas, a 27 year old singer-songwriter based in Brooklyn, NY, has been compared to Alanis Morissette, Ani DiFranco, and Sarah MacLachlin. This Birmingham, Alabama native isn't just another girl singer who can hold a tune. Laura has a voice you can recognize in a millisecond. Somehow, her voice is technically proficient and emotionally raw, quietly subtle and blatantly complex, hard, soft, funky, lyrical, undefinable... For the past seven years since her radio debut in Vermont, Laura Thomas has been musically and physically all over the map. As the lead singer of DC-based band Kiki and the Rockstars, Laura rocked the audience at the Velvet Lounge into a "record breaking" frenzy. Local fans in Dunedin, New Zealand, rarely missed her weekly jazz sessions at the Arc Caf with pianist Trevor Coleman. In Sao Paulo, Brasil, Laura guest starred in mind-bending funk jams at first-rate clubs like Urbano and Grazie a Dios. Out of all that, she developed her own style - an emotional-girl-folk-rock that's unlike anything that has been laid down before her. This year she co-produced her first album, "On My Sleeve," and launched a solo career. Her biting, no-bullmake lyrics, powerhouse voice, and driving rhythm guitar make for an unusually high-energy show. Laura is not your average folkie - she sings with Ani DiFranco's tell-it-like-it-is defiance, Alanis Morissette's sheer, clear power, and at times, the sultriness of a jazz singer. The result is an audio-shock of emotional truth. Booking: email: laurabama@hotmail call: (718) 499-0054
