Details: Paddys Well is a music project that came about when two men with a common interest in Irish music finally got an opportunity to chat. Paul Moore and Joe Hughes have been playing Irish folk, traditional and original music for years in and around Philadelphia; Paul with Blackthorn and Joe with Banna. Through the years, their busy schedules rarely left them time to share a stage, let alone discuss their common interests in music over a pint. Both men left their respective bands in 2004. A chance meeting at a benefit for a friend brought them together on stage for the first time. Joined by Frank Reed, Matt Brescia, and Laine Walker, a band slowly emerged from the smoke and Guinness stains at Brittingham's pub. Paddys Well has a sound that is often familiar yet sometimes foreign; with lyrics that lift the heart and raise a glass, and sometimes smack you in the face. The songs reflect their life experiences as well as their love for Ireland and Irish-America with all its triumphs and tragedies. After only two short years, the band continues to grow in popularity from Central Pennsylvania to the Jersey shore, from the Poconos, to Delaware. Their new CD First Friday captures the songs and music that have audiences packing halls, festivals, and pubs, and singing along. So welcome, and remember Paddy's Well!" Joe Hughes : (5 String Banjo, Guitar, Mandolin, Vocals) Paul Moore : (Guitar, Vocals) Matt Brescia : (Flutes, Whistles, Concertina, Vocals) Frank Reed : (Acoustic Bass, Electric Bass, Vocals) Laine Walker : (Fiddle, Vocals)
