Wade Martin spent his early years in England. When he was eight, his parents retired to the Canary Islands and WM had to quickly adapt to his new Spanish home. It was here, WM learned how to speak Spanish fluently. Senior Blass Martinez, a world- renowned South American opera singer recognized WM's pop music talent and spent four years putting him through intense vocal training that helped build his powerful yet control five octave range. The developing good looks and constant female attention in part thanks to his heart felt love songs, brought WM media attention as a model. He was able to utilize these opportunities to promote his musical skills by selling tickets to his concerts and thus became recognized as a new artist by the European music loving public. WM has been producing himself and other artists from the well-known to the unknown for over ten years. He's part of an elite group of writers that record all their own instrumentation within their work and is credited for playing over twenty different instruments. In other words, when you hear a WM song, 99 percent of the time he's playing all the instruments and the same can be said for the writing. In addition, WM arranges, mixes, produces and orchestrates the distribution and music downloads of his work and others. WM was at the forefront of the independent revolution before it even existed. He's proud to have spent his career as an independent artist free from major label control, which allows WM the freedom to give you the diversity you enjoy in his music!
