Mangieri, a solo synth artist specializing in soft, spacey, warm synth compositions. Born in NYC in 1953, now a resident of Reisterstown, MD., Michael, or "Mikey" to his closest friends, took the name Epaphras as his web presence in his music creations from the friend of the apostle Paul, found in the Bible, Colossians 1. Epaphras started playing the accordion, yes accordion, back in the 60s. He started a couple of short-lived rock bands in the 70s where he still played electric accordion. Married life took most of his time through the late 70s and 80s when he finally returned to music in the early 90s after purchasing a Roland D-20. Soon after he added a Roland JV-1000 Workstation (one of the few who actually has one!) and released his first CD, Cosmic Visions, in 2000 on MP3.com. Currently very busy in his full-time job and his other hobby, Mid and High-Power rockets, he is just starting to think about next CD. But the new house has to be built first which will have a small studio for his music recording work.
