Steve's sonorous tenor voice and gentle, melodic fingerstyle guitar (reminiscent of Dan Fogelberg) have a restive and orienting restorative quality matched by the scriptural and mystical verse he tends to draw on for lyrical content. 14 MP3 Songs EASY LISTENING: Mood Music, FOLK: Gentle Details: SOLACE For Seasons Of Suffering A new double compilation CD from Steve Bell In a culture that sometimes seems deeply committed to the denial of pain, Steve Bells new project brings us face to face with two significant realities: To be human is to sometimes suffer. We need not suffer without solace. About a year ago, Steve received an email from a friend who was then suffering from renal cancer. Ben wrote rather eloquently about the upholding nature of some of Steves songs, and how those recordings had carried him and his family through the many difficulties of his failing health. He went on to say, I want to see a sustaining CD from Steve Bell, a compilation that would help those who are dying and those who love them to bring peace and comfort... (and) understanding. What songs would be there? Which would help most for someone dealing with loss the passing of a loved one helping them face death and passing? The idea ignited an immediate sense of passion and urgency in Steve and the Signpost Music team. Despite the unusual nature of the project, it felt like it could be done, and it should be done. And so, (with detailed suggestions from Ben), a list of suitable songs was compiled. Five songs chosen from earlier albums were sounding rather dated and were freshly rerecorded for Solace. A project draft was evaluated by people immersed in the world of palliative care and by gracious people presently in the midst of their own suffering. This process helped focus and refine content and presentation. It was also determined that an edited version of the previously released Volume 2 of the Listening In Audio Magazine, Can God Be Trusted?, would be a fitting compliment to the 14 songs chosen for this two CD set. Solace For Seasons of Suffering is now completed. Most of the songs on Disc One are derived from ancient prayers, poems and Psalms. They are redolent, musically and lyrically, with the sustaining character that Ben Mclean envisioned. Disc Two offers honest conversation with fellow sufferers, and gently probes some of the great questions raised by suffering. Steve makes this offering with the hope that Solace will be a welcome and helpful resource for the journey we all make to the One who created and sustains us through every kind of day. Is there suffering? Yes. But there is also Solace For Seasons of Suffering. For more information, please contact Signpost Music, 1578 Erin St, Winnipeg, 1 800 854-3499
