ELECTRONIC: Down Tempo, ELECTRONIC: Ambient Details: Timbretronics - the electronic personification of longtime musician Mark McEvers, a pianist and keyboard player since childhood. With over twenty years of professionally playing other peoples music, his decades of cross genre experiences and influences have culminated in this debut album, The Big Picture. Embracing a wide spectrum of electronic influences that range way back to the synthesized rock of ELP and Yes, to Kraftwerk, Jean Michel Jarre and Brian Eno, continuing up to today with artists such as Armin Van Buuren, William Orbit and Moby. McEvers created Timbretronics to take the listener on a sonic voyage that is as suited to the dance floor as much as it is suited for the relaxed headphone listening adventure. Believing in and enthusiastically moving forward into the future, Timbretronics embraces the exciting technology of electronics and computer-based music creation. Things are possible today in the creation of music that were not available to the artist 20 years ago. Using electronic percussion, bass and layers of sequenced multi-timbral rhythms as a canvas, Timbretronics then embellishes the creation with musical sounds, styles and instrumentation from all cultures, just as a gourmet chef will spice up her creation with exotic tastes from around the globe. Who says you can't put a banjo together with a kalimba? There is a huge world out there with wonderful and exciting forms of musical sounds that we now have access to discover and experience like never before. The Timbretronic mission focuses on breaking down the barriers that have been all too quickly been built up around styles, genres and cultural traditions of music. Infuse an exotic instrument or rhythm with original electronic textures, toss in a straight up bass line on top of a down tempo, chill, trance, or any other electrobeat, then top it all off with a deep, rich, yet not too complicated melody and structure and you've got Timbretronics. Its all about orchestration, about choosing the right mix of timbres and arranging them with the right pitch and intensity that will transport the listener through an exciting story of sound to stimulate emotion, to elevate your spirit, to make you move, to inspire, to make you smile and leave you happier and feeling more alive than before. Stay tuned.....more to come.
