Volume Two of Old School 2 Def is the "conscious" piece of da duality. We start off with Hip-hop Niggaz, still trying to purge dem frauds and fakes that don't know the culture up out da game. Phenomenon and Feel My Shit are in the same vein. Soundbyte wit' Substance was named in opposition to all the radio static dat be having soundbytes with no real content. This track was produced by DJ Sseleman, I just added and remixed my vocals. Guestin' on dis is my boy B-One. It's dedicated to him since he recently had a life threatened accident. We live to see the day you pick you mike back up son. Love forever. Deathwish is a reminder of how we used to rhyme straight off the top off the block in the dozens. It sets up the fictional scenario of such a battle just to gi yous a taste of the way we used ta do it. WildLife is a track with Murda Mal that was on the original version of his Wild Life CD. Thank U is dedicated to the King of rock Jam Master Jay. May he live forever. Neva Say Die is a shot out to all my homies in hoods and barrios and reservations worldwide strugglin' ginst dem odds and trying to rise up. Dem Bones would be rather straightforward, but it was based on an old crazy Euroamerican folk song one of my teachers used to sing in elementary school. I also thought it was incredibly stupid, but it always stayed in my head. Here we give it a kick, ya know? Girl Got Problems? Self-explanatory. Still looking for the queens and trying to drop off the STP crew ya'll. So Lovely is for the queens dat actually act like it. Hope ya feel me, peace.
