Like a beard of bees. Lousy Robot If you want to find Lousy Robot, just take a look into the creepy, post-punk world of Indie-Pop. A four-piece rock group from Albuquerque, Lousy Robot are well known for creating catchy, noisy songs aimed at the cynical but somehow resonating with the hopeful. Songs about the not-so-everyday lives we deal with everyday. Their critically acclaimed 2005 release, The Strange and True Story of Your Life, was an enigmatic, narcotic effort influenced and produced by the complicated hand of John Dufilho (The Deathray Davies). Always prolific, Lousy Robot and Dufilho returned to Salim Nourallahs Pleasantry Lane Studio in October, 2005, to record yet another collection of introspective pop songs. With special guests ranging from Cory Watson (Black Tie Dynasty) to John Lefler (Dashboard Confessional) to Johnny Lloyd Rollins (Himself), this latest recording promises to be an aggressive and confident companion to Lousy Robots live performances.
